

For Immediate Release
January 14, 2026

The Calgary TELUS Convention Centre Launches First Indigenous ReconciliAction Plan from a Canadian Convention Centre

Calgary, Alberta - For over 50 years, the Calgary TELUS Convention Centre (CTCC) has been a community gathering place, paving the way for the business events industry as Canada's first purpose-built convention centre, leading to the opening of other centres across the country. In this time, we have never lost sight of our place within a larger Canada. Today we are proud to unveil our Indigenous ReconciliAction Plan, the first for a Canadian convention centre.

"For the CTCC, we started by reflecting on our land acknowledgement and learning the why and history of all of us as newcomers to acknowledge the lands we are on." Kurby Court, President and CEO.

Our Indigenous Action Plan reflects on our role within a greater community and builds a P.A.T.H. forward through collaboration and our understanding that more can be done towards truth and reconciliation. The plan is a multi-year endeavour that will continually change and evolve as we learn and grow as an organization, encompassing the following four elements.

Partner and collaborate with Indigenous leaders and knowledge keepers in understanding the history, practices, and stories of the lands.

Acknowledge our role within the Calgary region in the bringing together of people from far and wide to the ancestral lands of Treaty 7 and Metis Nation within Alberta District 5 and 6.

Teach employees and guests through cultural awareness training by eliminating misconceptions, while providing opportunities for engagement, reflection and participation within Indigenous communities.

Heighten our commitment towards meaningful relationships with Indigenous people through employment and business opportunities.

"Our collective responsibility includes acting on principle and doing what's right – not because it's easy, but because – through our actions – we believe we can help build a world of balance, belonging and equity. As an organization, we are committed to creating change that is not just impactful but meaningful, ensuring a positive legacy to the broader community.” Kurby Court

For more information

Kaili Cashin, Senior Manager, Communications and External Relations

Email – kailic@calgary-convention.com

Cell – (403) 796-2641

About Calgary TELUS Convention Centre

The Calgary TELUS Convention Centre is focused on enhancing the services that we provide well beyond the venue—to create a place and experience that supports all events for people to convene, connect and converse together. What started as a central location for gathering has grown into a next generation of convention services and experiences. www.calgary-convention.com

###